Three numbers I'd rather hide

I bought a block in Corio, in Geelong's north, to keep the house and add a second dwelling.

My model puts the whole project at $995,601

before interest.

The old house is in the budget

$83,500

WHAT IT IS

Renovating the house I already own, inside the $361,500 construction line (about 23%).

WHAT IT MEANS FOR ME

Part of the build budget is catching the old house up.

The money I still have to find

$98,326

WHAT IT IS

The gap between project cost and the funding in my plan.

WHAT IT MEANS FOR ME

That is money I still have to find.

The most extra cash I would need

$148,802

WHAT IT IS

Peak extra cash over 36 months, beyond the $241,000 I have pledged.

WHAT IT MEANS FOR ME

It is that high because it includes the rent shortfall after the block is split into two titles.

Why I print the ugly figure

A model showing only tidy lines is a pitch. The uncomfortable figures are where the decisions get made.

My own numbers, provisional, not advice.
